In the play, As You Like It, the Bard, William Shakespeare, detailed the Seven Ages of Man. With apologies to the Bard, here are the seven ages of a Rotarian.

All the world's a Club

And all the men and women merely members:

They have their exits and their entrances;

And one member in his or her time plays many parts, --

Their Acts being seven ages.

At first, the Beginning Rotarian, eager, doing:

Then the Trainer, with enthusiasm to share new-found Rotary knowledge with those around;

And then the Organizer, willing to take on projects – Art in The Park et al;

Then comes the Planner, with knowledge extensive that allows for new ideas to generate and implement:

The Authority follows, the ones who become Club Presidents, District Governors and International President for a select few:

Then the Facilitator, slower now, but full of experiences that motivate those of us around:

And finally, the Elder Statesman, loyal and generous, an example to us all.
